Olga joined IMK in 2017, after having served as a law clerk to the Honourable Clément Gascon at the Supreme Court of Canada. While in law school she acted as Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Law Journal, represented students accused of academic and disciplinary offences through the Student Advocacy program, and worked at IMK as a summer student.

Olga is developing a general litigation practice, with a particular interest in constitutional and administrative law, as well as private international law. She represents clients in a range of private disputes and public law matters.
